and timing always exquisite, her stage presence always overdone with sharp precision and wit, and her brassy look in any show a gift of love and wacky lyricism with lots of baubles, bangles and beads with a body full of glitter. So, so Noo Awleens.

There was so much talent in Mr. Harris' cabaret concoction I'm going to list the entire cast, and pleased with answered prayers that Mr. Harris is producing Naughty Cabaret again so you can see for yourselves what turned out to be simply a marvel of invention and entertainment for a first time producer.

Here's what they all did and they did so well!

Show Creator, Producer, & Director Marshall Harris, Musical Director Jim Walpole, Comedy Consultant Becky Allen, Upright Base Jimmy Williams, Drummer Dane Schindler, Special Guest Star Becky Allen, Performances by: Veronica Belletto, Iggy Ingler, Rikki Gee & Philip Gordon, Burlesque Performer Roxy Le Rouge, and Naughty Showgirl Christina Tichenor.

Following are the song titles and/or acts:

Opening Dance by the Naughty Cabaret show girls Christina Tichenor and Roxy Le Rouge. (Both of these ladies also did a couple of naughty strip teases. Ms. Veronica Belletto was a stunningly beautiful performer and did a mini-strip tease and sang well.)

- All of Me - Marshall Harris
- A Good Man's Hard to Find - Becky Allen
- Fever - Marshall Harris
- Why Don't You Do Right? - Veronica Belletto
- When You're Good to Mamma - Rikki Gee
- Pussy Cat Song - Philip Gordon
- Great Balls of Fire - Marshall Harris

After the show break:

- The Stripper Theme - Roxy Le Rouge
- Laundry Man - Becky Allen
- Just a Gigolo - Iggy Ingler
- Do You Take It - Rikki Gee & Philip Gordon

I'll Be Seeing You - Marshall Harris
Life is just a Bowl of Cherries - Marshall Harris

Marshall Harris is bringing back Naughty Cabaret at The Marigny Theater. Tourists and locals still need a good entertaining distraction! We always like a little spice in our lives. And it will be your "Patriotic Duty" to attend over the Fourth of July Weekend.

Avenue Q

Avenue Q was a very entertaining musical brought to the Mahalia Jackson Theatre via Work Light Productions. The show has bouncy, and or lyrical music, by Robert Lopez and Jeff Marx. Some people have claimed to find many elements from the musical scores from Jim Henson's Muppet Show and Sesame Street. Whatever the inspiration, the music was played with a sharp precise sound by the Avenue Q Band under the direction of Michael McCassey, and the script by Jeff Whitty was charming. The lyrics were also witty and fit the moment(s) with precision.

Yes, this was a puppet show but thank the gods, NOT A CHILDREN'S PUPPET SHOW. No whiney brats in the audience for this show.

The very adult book by Jeff Whitney was not what one might have seen eons ago on our towns Miss Muffin Show. Not at all. (Although two puppets banging each other on stage with wild abandon would have added a little salt and pepper to her show, which was often boring to the toddler set I'm told.) So maybe a revival, with adult updates) of an old local favorite like that could come along, since kids see this "effing" stuff on computers all the time anyway. I'm told...

However this lovely show, set in an outer borough of New York City, had as part of its life-lessons plot had: puppet boy meets puppet girl; loses puppet girl, finds puppet girl again, and all end up together - happily ever after. Of course everything in between (including the outrageously funny "first night f—" of boy puppet and girl puppet, skinny arms and legs flying about like stork parts on a hot griddle) filled out the clever show with lots of stage business and Trekie Monster, a Cookie Monster look alike, who sings one of the most popular songs in the musical about personal computers and the Internet "which are made for watching porn and nothing else!" (Actually this is fact as much of web based technology such as secure payments and web-streaming are products of the market driven desire for adult entertainment safely delivered to the privacy of
