possibly, if he has a boyfriend or is available these days.

And not sure of all the details, but keep an eye out for the David Sedaris double-bill Santaland Diaries and Seasons Greetings at The Valiant Theatre and Lounge (6621 St. Claude Avenue) December 15-17 in Arabi.

More conventional holiday fare will be provided at the Saenger Theatre by Dr. Seuss' How the Grinch Stole Christmas! The Musical playing ten shows November 22-27. Following the Grinch and his dog Max, Jersey Boys makes its Saenger debut December 13-18. Can't say if they'll be singing any Christmas carols, but you'll certainly hear Sherry, Big Girls Don't Cry, Rag Doll, Oh What a Night and Can't Take My Eyes Off You in this true origin story of Frankie Valli and The Four Seasons.

The Louisiana Philharmonic Orchestra has an outstanding line-up of holiday treats in store for us. On December 3, at the Mahalia Jackson Theater, the LPO presents Home Alone: Movie with Orchestra, a screening of Chris Columbus' 1990 comedy about a boy left behind by his family during Christmas time. John Williams' Academy Award-nominated score will be performed live by the LPO while the film is projected on a massive HD screen.

Next up, at The Orpheum Theater (129 Roosevelt Way), is the Orpheum Holiday Spectacular with the 610 Stompers (Dec. 9-11). This journey around the world celebrates the season through the eyes of different cultures. Will we see New Orleans' own "Ordinary Men with Extraordinary Moves" tango? Waltz? Cha cha? You'll have three chances to find out.

I suspect things will be a bit more traditional on December 15 for Baroque Christmas, also at the Orpheum, which will feature classics from the Romantic and Baroque eras, including Saint-Saëns' Christmas Oratorio and selections from Handel's Messiah. The program will be repeated December 16 at the First Baptist Church in Covington.

And for those of us who sometimes wish the holiday season could be a bit abridged, check out The Ultimate Christmas Show (Abridged) at JPAS' Teatro Wego! in Westwego December 2-11, in which three members of St. Everybody's Non-Denominational Universalist Church are pressed into service, when none of the scheduled acts show up, to perform the entire Variety Show and Christmas Pageant by themselves.

Hmmm...wonder if this'll be followed by The Ultimate Carnival Show (Abridged)???
